To the Barker CSD Community:

It has been a very unique, and in some cases, difficult start to the school year for students, families, and teachers. At this point in the year, we feel it is best for all of us to take a pause and close our Chromebooks.

For the week of November 23 – 27 (Thanksgiving), teachers will assign no after-hours work/homework be issued outside of the class periods on that Monday and Tuesday. Also, no work will be issued over Thanksgiving break or due on Monday 11/30. Students in cohort B & C will still need to synch in on Monday and Tuesday that week for regular instruction, but all instruction will be taking place in class and not extending into personal, at-home family hours for the students.

We ask that our students and families take this week to recharge and re-center. Spend time (in a socially distant responsible way) with families and friends. Be a kid. Be a parent. Be a friend. Don't worry about school and be in the moment.

Thank you all again for your continued support of the school and your hard work this year. Please do not hesitate to reach out if you have any needs, concerns or questions.

Sincerely,

Michael Carter
District Principal, PreK-12
